Sub-Saharan

Africa. Simply
put, Africa does not have enough

power. Despite the abundant low-

carbon and low-

cost energy

resources

available to Sub-

Saharan Africa,

the region s

entire installed

electricity

Online Library Guide To

capacity, at a little over 80 GW, is equivalent to that of the Republic of Korea. Looking ahead, Sub-Saharan Africa will need to ramp-up its power generation capacity substantially.

The investment
needed to meet
this goal
largely exceeds African
countries
already stretched public
finances.
Increasing
private investment is critical to help
expand and

supply.

Historically,

most private

sector finance

has been

channeled

through

privately

financed

independent

power projects

(IPP), supported

by nonrecourse
or limited
recourse loans,
with long-term
power purchase
agreements with the state
utility or another off-
taker. Between 1990 and 2014,
IPPs have spread
across Sub-

and are now
present in 17
countries.

Currently, there
are 125 IPPs,
with an overall
installed
capacity of 10.7
GW and investments of $24.6 billion.
However, private investment could be much greater

and less concentrated.

South Africa
alone accounts
for 67 IPPs, 4.3
GW of capacity
and $14.4
billion of investments; the remaining projects are concentrated in a handful of countries. The

Online Library Guide To

Objective of this study is to evaluate the experience of IPPs and
identify lessons
that can help African
countries
attract more and better private investment. At the core of this analysis is a

reflection on
whether IPPs
have in fact benefited Sub-
Saharan Africa,
and how they might be improved. The analysis is based primarily on in depth case studies, carried out in five
countries,

including Kenya,
Nigeria, South
Africa, Tanzania
and Uganda,
which not only
have the most numerous but also among the most extensive experience with
IPPs.
